FINDING INSPIRATION IN PERSON AND IN PRINT

BY LIZ APPEL RINCK, Γ/BUTLER, EDITOR

MY FIRST TRIP OVERSEAS WAS COURTESY OF MICKEY MOUSE. WELL, MORE ACCURATELY, THE WALT DISNEY CORPORATION.

It was a press junket to what was then known as EuroDisney, which is located in Marne-la-Vallée, France, about 20 miles outside Paris. As one would expect, since Mickey was paying the bills, we spent most of the four-day trip in the theme park. But we did have a half-day tour and then dinner in the City of Light, and ... oh, my. Those few hours were enough to cause your editor to fall in love with international travel.

Since that first trip, I've been fortunate to visit seven European countries, as well as return to Paris five more times. (Some might view my affection for Paris as obsessive, but certainly no one can accuse me of being fickle! Besides, a person never forgets her first crush.)

So I could be considered moderately well-traveled, and I feel like I've learned a great deal on my trips. But I am in complete awe of Tracey Long Carisch, Beta/Indiana, the subject of this issue's featured profile. In the spring of 2014, the Carisch family sold their Nashville, Tennessee, home and most of their belongings and set forth on a 15-month adventure that took them to 25 countries. And they were not simply tourists. During the two to six weeks they spent in each location, they became part of the community by participating in service efforts, from habitat restoration in New Zealand to assisting with preschool classes in Fiji to volunteering at shelters in Bolivia. You can learn more about their quest to find 100 Ways to Change the World on pages 18 through 21.

On page 18, Tracey Carisch tells "The Starfish Story" to illustrate the worldview she shares with her husband and three daughters. The point of the story is that while a single person may not be able to impact the whole world, it is within her reach to help one person at a time. Court Appointed Special Advocates epitomizes that philosophy by striving to make a difference for children in the foster care system, and to do so one child at a time. In the conclusion to our year-long commemoration of Theta's 25-year relationship with CASA, Elise Connor Rowan, Gamma/Butler, describes her commitment to becoming a CASA volunteer and her hopes of making meaningful contributions to the life of her CASA youth. You can read Elise's story on page 31.

Yet another inspirational and leading woman is the focus of "In Her Own Words," the regular question-and-answer session that appears in each issue. Louise Lev Geil, Beta Iota/Colorado, is not only a long-time Fraternity volunteer but also a veteran traveler. Her latest journey involved "seeing Everest the hard way," trekking in Nepal. You can read her description of hiking more than 100 miles and climbing more than 18,000 feet in inclement weather on page 23.

In this issue's other regular features, you will find moving accounts of Theta love and support ("I Am a Theta," page 5); an exploration of the time, energy, and resources that help create a new college chapter ("The KAΘ Extension Story," page 14); a handy guide to help recent graduates (and perhaps not-so-recent graduates!) remain connected to the Fraternity ("Sisters by Choice," page 26); and our project archivist's advice on researching family (whether Theta-related or not) histories ("Ask the Archivist," page 30).

Many writers who are more talented than your editor have used travel as a metaphor, as a tool for expounding on life's lessons. Certainly visiting unfamiliar places—whether on the other side of an ocean or the other side of a hometown—offers its share of enlightening moments: sometimes touching, sometimes profound, sometimes humorous, sometimes embarrassing. I believe that Theta sisterhood offers the same opportunities for enlightenment. The alumnae and collegians who appear on the pages of each issue of this magazine never fail to encourage and energize me, and I hope you feel the same way. ♦

MAGAZINE HONORED

"Straight As Arrows," a profile article about paralympian ASHLEE SHEPPARD, ETA MU/OCCIDENTAL, was honored with a third-place award in the Human Interest Article (Long) category at the annual banquet of the Fraternity Communications Association (FCA). The article was written by JAN SCHMITZ MATHEW, DELTA/ILLINOIS, and published in the Spring 2014 issue. (FCA is a professional association of fraternity and sorority communicators.)

THETAS ON CAPITOL HILL

Each spring, the Fraternal Government Relations Coalition (FGRC), which comprises the National Panhellenic Conference (NPC), the North-American Interfraternity Conference (NIC), and the Fraternity and Sorority Political Action Committee (FSPAC), sponsors Capitol Hill visits. Outstanding Greek collegians from across the US travel to Washington, DC, to lobby federal legislators on issues related to higher education.

REUNIONS

The ETA THETA CHAPTER at CENTRAL FLORIDA will be turning 15 this autumn! An anniversary celebration will take place at the Eta Theta Chapter facility and surrounding Central Florida locations the week-end of November 20-22, 2015. MY THETA ADOPTION STORY

Have you ever heard someone who's never been a part of a fraternity or sorority say, "All you did was buy your friends!" I want to dispel that belief by sharing my story.

I was born in Ukraine and adopted by my parents at the age of three. My brothers, John and Joe, were also adopted from Ukraine. My parents came home to South Carolina with three little kids who didn't know English, didn't know each other, and weren't aware that they had just been adopted into a loving family.

I grew up in a lovely southern home and came to love Sunday church, the SEC, and the importance of family. But one day my dad got a job in Nebraska, so we packed up and headed to the heartland. As I lived there, I grew to love the Cornhuskers and learned to find beauty in the vast plains that cover the state.

My next adventure was college. I got accepted into my dream school, Colorado State University, and headed to CSU last August. I heard about the re-establishment of Kappa Alpha Theta's Beta Gamma Chapter and immediately decided to go for it.

Bid day came quickly, and after a few weeks, I began to form relationships with these amazing women. In just a few months, I knew I had found some of my best friends in Theta.

During the spring semester, I suffered seven seizures in the course of 30 minutes. My Theta sisters were right by my side, calming me and supporting me through those scary moments. Two of them stayed with me in the hospital with me while my mom drove all night.

It was scary, and nerve-racking to be in an unfamiliar hospital. But I didn't feel alone. My mom wasn't there, nor were my dad or brothers, but my new sisters were. They stayed the night and watched me cry and told me everything was going to be OK. They came by the next day and gave me stuffed animals, food, laughter and—of course—Starbucks!

My point is: I had family by my side during an awful situation. So, yes, I have to pay fees to be a part of Theta, but I didn't buy my friends. Just like my mom and dad had to pay to bring John, Joe, and me home, they didn't "buy a family." Family is created through support and unconditional love. I was adopted into an amazing family, and my dreams of having sisters finally came true once I pledged Kappa Alpha Theta.

Rebekah Whittle, BG/Colorado State, serves her chapter as communications director.

MY COLLEGE STORY BEGAN WITH THETA

Last spring, I walked across the stage at my political science department's commencement ceremony, the concluding step in officially completing my undergraduate education. I can't say that it seems like "just yesterday" that I was arriving at University of California Berkeley, moving into my dorm room, and taking my first college courses because, to be honest, freshman year seems like an eternity ago.

My first year dragged on, I didn't do particularly well in my classes, I didn't meet my college BFFs, and I didn't really get involved in any of the unique and incredible things that Berkeley had to offer me. I remember feeling lost, like I wasn't good enough, and—truthfully—quite lonely.

During the summer between my first and second year, I signed up for sorority recruitment. I found a home at the Omega chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta, and that's where my Berkeley story really began.

Being a Theta gave me a community that stood by me and supported me through some of the most challenging times of my college career. It provided me with the time management skills to be able to juggle extra-curricular activities, leadership positions, classes, and a healthy social life. It gave me sisters who empowered me to reach my academic and professional goals, even when I felt like things had gotten out of control. It gave me a system of supportive friends who volunteered for events I put on, trusted me to help manage chapter events, and were there for me during some of the most emotionally trying times of my young adult life. In short, Theta gave my college life substance.

It is so easy to glide through your college years, focusing only on what you came there to do: get an education. At Cal, your education is about how you apply what you're learning, how you give back to the community as more than a transitive member, and the ideas, relationships, and belief systems that you build during your time there. Without the support that Theta gave me, I never would have found the courage to participate in our student government, to really kick-start the work of my nonprofit organization, and to find my voice hidden deep within the shy, unsure, and uncritical freshman-year me.

Although I'm not completely sure what's to come for me in the coming years, I'm confident that, with my critical Berkeley education and my Theta support system, I will be ready for whatever life has in store.

Marissa Vessels, Ω/UC Berkeley, graduated with a degree in political science and public policy. ◇

$1 MILLION

As Theta Foundation enters the final year of the Give to Lead, Give to Learn Campaign, more than $3.9 million has already been secured, including every dollar of the $1 million required to endow the need-based scholarship program. With your assistance, we can reach our $5 million goal and secure the remaining $1.1 million needed to endow Theta Foundation's support of the Educational Leadership Consultant program—a program Fraternity leaders describe as essential to the stability of existing college chapters, the growth of new college chapters, and preserving the shared Theta experience of more than 200,000 members.

Your Gift Matters

We need your help to reach our goal and to ensure our sisterhood remains forever at the forefront of leadership and learning. That's why we are asking you to invest in the future of our Fraternity and the next generation of Leading Women. A Theta Investment for Today and Tomorrow

Bettie, left, and Alice are two kite patterns of the "Founders Collection"

ABOUT JENNIFER & MARGARET:

Jennifer Parent Coleman, Delta Epsilon/Arizona State, is an interior designer and owns her own firm, JKC Designs, based in Connecticut. She has been a member of the FHC Interior Design Committee since 2010.

Margaret Leverich Blum, Beta Pi/Michigan State, works in product development and sales for a domestic textile manufacturer that weaves luxury fabrics for interiors. She is proud to have worked on fabrics for the White House which are in the Oval Office and private residence today.

Both Jennifer and Margaret are active members of the Westchester Alumnae Chapter, and Margaret currently serves as alumnae chapter treasurer.

If you would like to know more about the FHC IDC or the new Theta fabric, please email katfhc@kappaalphatheta.org.

THE FOUNDERS COLLECTION - WEAVING A DREAM INTO REALITY

BY ABBY MERRITT BAKER, FHC MARKETING COORDINATOR

The Fraternity Housing Corporation Interior Design Committee (FHC IDC) volunteers had a dream. They wanted to create a uniquely Theta fabric that could be used in every chapter facility decorated by the interior designers and enjoyed by Thetas all over North America. Interior design committee member Jennifer Parent Coleman, Delta Epsilon/Arizona State, partnered with Margaret Leverich Blum, Beta Pi/Michigan State, to spearhead the Theta fabric project. The pair created two different fabrics, with plans to create two more by the end of 2015.

JEN DESCRIBES THE PROCESS

Our kite was the inspiration for the signature Bettie and Alice fabrics. We reviewed hundreds of fabric structure weaves to determine the ideal quality, hand, and weave. We then selected the yarns, and the mill created a blanket (a term used for textile samples woven by the mill). The results were thrilling! The combinations were beautiful and reflected the classy elegance that our chapter facilities embody. The fabrics are ready for use in our chapter facilities this summer.

THE FABRIC

- The collection consists of two kite patterns that we have named after two of our founders, Bettie and Alice. By the end of this year, we will launch two additional patterns to complete our "Founders Collection" with a fabric in honor of each of our four founding members.
- Bettie and Alice are manufactured in the US at a family-owned high-end custom mill that weaves fabrics for interiors.
- The yarns we selected were specially colored to reflect Theta's black and gold.
- The fabrics are woven on Jacquard looms with yarns of various fibers to achieve beautiful matte and sheen areas.
- Both fabrics are applicable for upholstery and decorative purposes.

Creating these unique Theta fabrics is yet another way the FHC IDC contributes to the enhancement of Theta's brand. ◇

MARGARET BLUM, BPI/MICHIGAN STATE, and JENNIFER COLEMAN, ΔE/ARIZONA STATE, creators of the "Founders Collection" of fabrics.

NUMBER 4,000

SARAH CRAIG, Π/ALBION

SARAH CRAIG, Π/ALBION, is Life Loyal Number 4,000! That is, she is the 4,000th Theta to enroll in the program. She is currently communications specialist at Notre Dame's Eck Institute for Global Health and was previous marketing manager for the university's Center for Tropical Disease Research and Training, which her father helped establish.

WHY DID YOU ENROLL IN THE THETA LIFE LOYAL PROGRAM?

I enrolled because it has always been a "bucket list" item. I've always wanted to give greater support to Theta than I have in the past. It was way past time for me—I'm not getting any younger!

HOW HAS YOUR THETA EXPERIENCE EVOLVED SINCE YOUR INITIATION?

After graduation, I was living and working in the Detroit area. I loved it, but after getting married and having my first child (of three), we decided to move nearer to my home (South Bend, Indiana) to take care of my parents. My father passed away in 1995 and my mother in 2008. The majority of my career has been in higher education in two institutions that do not have a Greek system (Saint Mary's College and the University of Notre Dame), and there is not an active alumnae chapter in South Bend. So staying connected has been a challenge. But I have stayed close to my "Big," Susan Valentine, who lives in Chicago and practices law. And through Facebook I have enjoyed reconnecting with many of my sisters, sharing photos and comments.

LIFE LOYAL IS ONE MEANS FOR ALUMNAE TO CONTINUE THEIR ENGAGEMENT WITH KAPPA ALPHA THETA? WHY IS THIS IMPORTANT?

It reminds me of an important chapter and formidable time in my life and the people who were part of it. Theta shaped and changed me and gave me confidence I didn't know I had. Being part of an all-woman's organization strengthened me. Unfortunately, I had many personal challenges during college, and my sisters were there for me and have been ever since.

ONE OF THETA'S AIMS IS THE WIDEST INFLUENCE FOR GOOD, AND YOUR CAREER SEEMS TO REFLECT THAT GOAL. IS THIS IMPORTANT TO YOU?

Very much! At the Eck Institute for Global Health, we are addressing diseases that affect billions of people around the world. We are a university-wide enterprise with a mission to encourage the recognition of health as a fundamental human right and promote research, training, and service to advance health standards for all people, especially those who are disproportionately impacted by preventable diseases.

THE KAPPA ALPHA THETA EXTENSION STORY

EXTENSION IS THE ADDITION OF NATIONAL PANHELLENIC CONFERENCE (NPC) CHAPTERS TO THE PANHELLENIC COMMUNITY ON A COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY CAMPUS, OR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A FRATERNITY/SORORITY COMMUNITY ON A CAMPUS WHERE PREVIOUSLY NONE HAD EXISTED. EXTENSION IS A PIONEERING PROCESS.

SINCE 2013, THETA HAS ESTABLISHED SUCCESSFUL CHAPTERS AT NINE COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES! WE ARE PLEASED TO ANNOUNCE THAT OUR NEWEST CHAPTER, THETA LAMBDA, WILL BE ESTABLISHED AT THE UNIVERSITY OF ROCHESTER IN THE AUTUMN OF 2015. (LEARN MORE ON PAGE 16.)

THE TIMELINE ON THESE TWO PAGES ILLUSTRATES THE TIME, ENERGY, AND RESEARCH THAT HELP CREATE A NEW KAPPA ALPHA THETA CHAPTER.

research

- We maintain current research on schools whose values align with ours and on whose campuses a new Theta chapter will succeed.

open

- At various times throughout the year, NPC provides information about campuses open for extension. Open means the campus community is thriving and a vote has occurred among existing groups to support the establishment of a new NPC organization on the campus.

visit

- If such an opening occurs at a school of interest to us, Fraternity staff and extension volunteers may make an exploratory visit to the campus. Such a visit contributes to the accumulated research on the institution and helps determine whether it should be further considered by Theta for extension.

vote

- If Grand Council supports extension at a school with an expanding Greek system, Council members will vote whether to accept an invitation to establish a Theta chapter if such an invitation is extended at the conclusion of the campus's extension process.

submit

- If the Council vote is unanimous, Theta extension experts prepare a comprehensive information packet and submit it to be considered along with the packets of other interested NPC groups.

present

- After considering the information submitted by NPC groups, the school of interest may invite Theta to make an on-campus presentation to students and school administrators along with other NPC finalists.

recruit

- If selected by the campus community to establish a chapter, a team of Theta staff and volunteer officers recruit charter members. Two educational leadership consultants (ELCs) are based at the soon-to-be established chapter, guide it toward installation, and remain in the area throughout the following year.

- During a weekend celebration, we initiate our newest members and charter the chapter! ELCs, as well as Theta staff and volunteers, and friends and family provide a strong foundation for future growth and success. ◇

ALTHOUGH THIS IS FREQUENTLY THE PROCESS BY WHICH THETA IS SELECTED TO BE PART OF A CAMPUS, IT IS NOT THE ONLY WAY EXTENSION MAY OCCUR. LOCAL CHAPTERS AT A GIVEN INSTITUTION MAY DIRECTLY PETITION TO AFFILIATE WITH THE FRATERNITY IF THERE IS NO PANHELLENIC ON THE CAMPUS. IN ADDITION, THETA MAY RE-ESTABLISH CHAPTERS AT SCHOOLS AT WHICH A MEMBERSHIP GROWTH PLAN WAS PUT INTO PLACE WHEN A THETA CHAPTER CLOSED.

Located in upstate New York, the University of Rochester offers more than 200 academic majors to nearly 10,500 undergraduate and graduate students. The university prides itself on its personal scale, with smaller classes, a low 10:1 student-to-teacher ratio, and increased interactions with faculty.

The university is also noted for its Eastman School of Music and is home to the Institute of Optics. Founded in 1929, the institute was the first educational program in the US devoted exclusively to optics. Rochester's Laboratory for Laser Energetics is home to the second most energetic fusion laser in the world.

Kappa Alpha Theta will join five National Panhellenic Conference groups on campus: Alpha Phi, Chi Omega, Delta Gamma, Gamma Phi Beta, and Kappa Delta.

WAYS OF THE WORLD

TRACEY CARISCH, B/INDIANA, AND FAMILY MAPPED OUT A 15-MONTH, SERVICE-BASED ITINERARY THAT TRANSLATED TO 25 COUNTRIES, 100 PROJECTS, AND COUNTLESS LIFE-CHANGING LESSONS.

BY JAN SCHMITZ MATHEW, Δ/ILLINOIS

There's a tale Tracey Long Carisch often tells. Adapted from The Star Thrower by Loren Eiseley, it's called "The Starfish Story."

A young man is walking along the ocean and sees a beach on which thousands and thousands of starfish have washed ashore. Further along he sees an old man, walking slowly and stooping often, picking up one starfish after another and tossing each one gently into the ocean.

"Why are you throwing starfish into the ocean?" he asks.

"Because the sun is up and the tide is going out and if I don't throw them further in they will die."

"But, old man, don't you realize there are miles and miles of beach and starfish all along it! You can't possibly save them all. You can't even save one-tenth of them. In fact, even if you work all day, your efforts won't make any difference at all."

"The old man listened calmly and then bent down to pick up another starfish and threw it into the sea.

"It made a difference to that one."

For Carisch, Beta/Indiana University, "The Starfish Story" links directly to the worldview she shares with her husband, Brian, and their three young daughters.

"Problems can seem so massive and depressing that you wonder what you can possibly do, and apathy develops," Carisch says. "Maybe you can't help the whole world, but you can help."

In April 2014, Carisch began writing her own version of the starfish story, one she dubbed "100 Ways to Change the World." She and Brian sold their Chattanooga, Tennessee, house, along with most of their possessions. What didn't sell went into storage. Carisch traded a career in organizational change management and community initiative implementation to home-school her daughters (ages six, eight, and 11) and serve as the family's travel agent. Brian, who owns his own software development business, prepared to stretch telecommuting to its limits.

Then, armed with four suitcases and five backpacks, the Carisches stepped out of their comfort zone and into a 15-month odyssey. They outlined the places they wanted to visit—Asia, Europe, Africa, Australia, New Zealand, and South and Central America—but had no firm itinerary.

The only caveat: Wherever they stayed, they'd pick up a starfish.

"Our trip was about service, but we also wanted to learn more about the world and our place in it," says Carisch, who blogged regularly about the family's experiences. "Sometimes we think the world is a dangerous place, but the bad things that happen are only a tiny sliver of what we experience on this planet."

"Everywhere we went people were kind, genuine, and welcoming."

LEAPS OF FAITH

Growing up, her family's travels fell into the traditional, once-a-year summer vacations, but Carisch recalls an early curiosity and awareness of global environments and connections within them. She grew up in Effingham, Illinois, and her decision to attend Indiana University reflected a strong family history: several relatives were IU graduates, and her mother, grandmother, and two great-grandmothers were members of Theta's Beta Chapter.

"Theta suited my personality," she says. "The women took classes and careers very seriously, but they were artistic and liked to have fun, too."

In Theta, Carisch also felt enveloped by a sense of continuity. Both her mother and grandmother had lived in the chapter facility, and their composites lined the upstairs walls. The year Carisch served as chapter CEO, her grandmother was on the facility corporation board and frequently attended chapter meetings.

"Much of what I learned in college, I learned from Theta," explains Carisch, who earned a degree in computer information systems from the IU School of Business. "My entire career has focused on networking, public speaking, and resolving issues among people."

"Everything I did at Theta prepared me for that."

Tracey Long found a kindred spirit in Brian Carisch, and they married two years after graduation. "We bring out a sense of adventure in each other," she says. "If one of us has an idea, the other basically says, 'Let's do it!'"

As their daughters went through grade school, the couple felt a need to pause and re-evaluate. "I thought we were a pretty balanced family but, looking back, we were in a rat race," says Carisch, referring to school and extra-curricular activities, along with social obligations. "We needed to slow down—to stop keeping up and stop feeling like every activity or enrichment class might give our daughters an edge in life."

"I wanted to focus on our time as a family and to give that the value it deserved. I came to the gradual realization that we didn't have to follow a set plan. We could do something very different that would be all about our family, and shaping it the way it's supposed to be."

Carisch recalls the tipping point came after she made a particularly well-received speech to a local community organization. Her dream job, she told Brian, would be to simply show up and talk to different groups about topics of interest. His reply: "Then let's really give you something to talk about. Let's have a unique experience, and see where it leads."

At that juncture, exploring the world turned from pipe dream to probability.

The couple decided to travel only to countries that were considered safe. They had friends and family in some of the places they planned to visit, but when they didn't, they'd opt for online vacation homes or apartment rentals. As the designated travel agent, Carisch would plan two or three countries ahead of their current location. "We wanted to do this while I could still home-school the girls and, fortunately, I felt I could handle fifth grade math!" she adds.

But even after they put their house on the market, the couple still felt something was missing. "We needed a guiding force to keep us focused," Carisch recalls. "It had to be more than 'Let's just get around the world.'"

Again, public speaking provided the answer. Carisch attended a conference at which presenters discussed their volunteer projects and challenged participants to set lofty goals for community service. "I came home

Much of what I learned in college, I learned from Theta. My entire career has focused on networking, public speaking, and resolving issues among people. Everything I did at Theta prepared me for that."

and told Brian, "I have an idea . . ."

One Hundred Ways To Change The World was born.

"Without the community service piece, we would have simply been tourists, doing our own thing," Carisch reflects. "Volunteering in new places allowed us to really get to know a community. It was a way to gain knowledge about people, problems, and opportunities.

"We all have it in us to take a leap of faith and get out of our comfort zone."

WORLDS AWAY

The world turned, and from Norway to Ethiopia, Cambodia to Croatia, and dozens of destinations in between, the Carisch's family life revolved around adventure, new friendships, and nature's beauty. They hiked towering fjords in Norway and the unusual Barrenjoey Lighthouse trail in Sydney; saw Venice by boat; braved an elephant riding tour in Thailand, and a deep sea bull shark dive in Fiji. While in Andorra, they experienced the Nit de Sant Joan (Night of Saint John) festival. At a Multicultural Family Fun Day at a playground in Skibbereen, County Cork, Ireland, they prepared and shared samples of their own culture: pans of apple crisp and crust-less peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

Service projects ranged from scooping dog messes at a local animal shelter to making dozens of sandwiches for The Mobile Kindy program, a kindergarten-preparedness initiative that takes preschool teachers, volunteers, and learning materials out to impoverished villages on the outskirts of Suva, Fiji.

They stayed at each destination anywhere from two to six weeks and the longer they traveled, the more fluid the itinerary. "At first, I ran two months ahead with my planning," says Carisch, "but by the time we were in New Zealand, I was looking for hotels a few nights ahead. And while we were in Thailand, we heard great things about Cambodia, so we decided to go there."

The family's time in Ethiopia brought profound revelations and life lessons, says Carisch, particularly since initial doubts had been hard to overcome:

"It's hard to believe there was a time we considered cancelling our trip to Ethiopia," she blogged. "Things happening thousands of miles away from Addis Ababa almost kept us away. Ebola in western Africa; school girls getting kidnapped in Nigeria; violence at various African borders; vague travel warnings issued by the State Department. It all sounded legitimately frightening from afar. We'd researched this part of our trip so extensively, talked with people living in the city, learned everything we might need to know as a family going to the continent. Our logic told us this would be a safe and incredibly valuable experience for our family. Yet, our fears nagged at us with unfounded what-ifs and paranoid possibilities. Luckily, we managed to focus on the facts and not on our fear....”

FOCUS ON COMMUNITY SERVICE

"Without the community service piece, we would have simply been tourists, doing our own thing," Carisch reflects. "Volunteering in new places allowed us to really get to know a community. It was a way to gain knowledge about people, problems, and opportunities.

Below: Planting native seeds as part of a habitat restoration project in New Zealand; camping in Ethiopia with a group of volunteers who work to develop environmental sustainability and poverty alleviation; and preparing sandwiches for Mobile Kindy, a program for disadvantaged children in Suva, Fiji.

They also tapped into an enviable spirit within this rugged African country, home to about 94 million residents.

“Poverty does not equate to violence,” she reflects. “There’s deterioration and sadness, but also a huge amount of beauty, faith, and gratitude for life. Too often in first-world countries, we don’t stop to appreciate what we have.”

Prior to her family’s world travels, much of Carisch’s career focused on the STEM/STEAM education movement—collaborating with teachers and business partners to improve student learning in the areas of science, technology, engineering, art, and math. Her inner educational “change agent” recognized a strategy at work in Ethiopia that she feels could improve outcomes for US students.

“We worked with several programs in Ethiopia that provide complete wrap-around services to children in poverty,” Carisch says. “These programs realized that children’s success in the classroom, and ultimately their path to a productive adult life, often has very little to do with what’s actually happening in the school. If a student is hungry, sick, fearful, or malnourished, he or she won’t be able to learn.

“Therefore, these organizations work to provide students with full medical care, nutritional programs throughout the entire week, clothing, and parental support services,” she adds. “By meeting basic life needs, they see an incredibly high success rate in getting children out of poverty.

“When addressing ‘student success’ in our educational system, the US continues to put its focus on what’s happening in the classroom, while very few resources go toward supporting basic life. Many educators understand poverty to be the biggest hurdle in educating our future generation, yet our country attempts to improve educational outcomes with continuous curriculum changes and new teaching strategies.

“We seem to be missing the root cause of the problem.”

LIVING THE LESSONS

When they return to the United States this summer, the Carisches will make their new home in Dillon, Colorado. But they’ve proved that anyplace in the world can feel like home and, collectively, they’ll continue to serve many corners of the globe.

“I provided feedback on the strategic plan for a financial cooperative in Ethiopia while we were in Thailand,” says Carisch. “While there, I also created some accounting reporting tools for an artisans guild in Ethiopia. In Chile, I finished up some volunteer materials for a children’s organization in Cambodia.

“Having already done work (for these organizations) remotely, I know I’ll keep that going when we return to the United States.”

Her daughters are equally committed. Eleven-year-old Emily has already launched a website—www.kidshelpinghands.org—that encourages youngsters to volunteer. She’d like to see the site’s functionality expand, so kids can team up toward common fundraising goals. Carisch describes Ali, age six, as “obsessed” with the Great Pacific Garbage Patch, a collection of marine debris, mostly plastics, in the North Pacific Ocean from the west coast of North America to Japan. She’s challenged her family to give up all plastics for a month, and plans to make a video about the process. Eight-year-old Liv seeks out service projects that cater to animals.

“Everything was new and different and strange, and we were our own little team, navigating through it,” says Carisch of their intense, around-the-clock family time. “I feel I know Brian and my children so much better now, and I see what will and won’t make them happy.

“That knowledge will change the way I mold our daughters.”

Carisch predicts that change will be the family’s only constant for months after their return. “It’ll be a shock coming back to the United States and returning to the way we live our lives in America, with big cars, big stores, and a fast pace. I think our lives will be different than before—the type of house we choose, our priorities, and the ways we structure time for our family.

“The areas I was so intense about before will have a different perspective. We’ll all realize how much we’ve changed, and we’ll have to adjust to a new paradigm.”

While nomadic, globe-trotting travel might not be feasible for most families, Carisch feels any level of adventure is good for the soul.

“We learned to let go, have faith, see where life takes us, and not plan so much. I saw my daughters gain confidence, knowing that they can go into an unusual circumstance and come out thriving.

“I think it would be great if every family was able to go overseas once. Or perhaps consider swapping a trip to Disney World for a family service project trip.

“The world is truly a fun and fascinating place to see.” ♦

DORIS BERGEN, AT/OHIO STATE

In addition to teaching a range of courses related to learning theories, human development, assessment, educational psychology, and early childhood play and education, Dr. Bergen has conducted research on cross-cultural programs for young children, development of play and humor in early and middle childhood, effects of technology-enhanced toys, adult memories of childhood play, social interactions of children with special needs, effects of early phonological awareness levels on later reading, and gifted children's humor development.

To facilitate interdisciplinary research and evaluation projects, Dr. Bergen founded and served as co-director of Miami University's Center for Human Development, Learning, and Technology. The Center was named in her honor at her retirement.

She has published more than 60 articles and book chapters, as well as 13 books. The latest, which is in production, focuses on developmental issues related to technology play and its potential effects on brain development. "Human play has been an essential element in the developmental progress of the human species," says Dr. Bergen. "Play is still a major factor in promoting children's cognitive as well as other areas of development. My recent work has focused on how the changing play environment of children may affect their future development."

Kappa Alpha Theta was founded, in part, to help women succeed academically in a predominately male environment. In fact, accepted wisdom in the 1870s was that women who attempted college-level studies were risking their physical health! Even today, young girls may receive messages that make them believe they will not be good at certain types of learning, and they may not have opportunities for hands-on mechanical learning. "Many of these barriers have been lifted, however," Dr. Bergen points out, "primarily due to the women who have met these challenges and succeeded. Membership in Theta has often provided an encouraging environment and great models of achievement for young women to reach their potential."

Theta nurtures leading women, reinforcing their confidence in their own abilities and knowledge. "Leading women can make a difference in academia, business, the arts or sciences, or any other field. They may also choose to lead in volunteer work and in their home community. Their influence and importance results not from seeing themselves as important or seeking leading roles but results from their ability to see that good ideas are needed, hard work is required, and strong encouragement and mentoring of others is essential." ♦

Louise Lev Geil

A THETA OF NOTE

LOUISE LEV GEIL, BETA IOTA/COLORADO, SERVED KAPPA ALPHA THETA AS ALUMNAE DISTRICT PRESIDENT, AS WELL AS A MEMBER OF GRAND COUNCIL FOR THREE TERMS. CURRENTLY, SHE IS AN ACTIVE MEMBER AND OFFICER OF THE FLATIRONS ALUMNAE CHAPTER. IN ADDITION, GEIL IS AN ENTHUSIASTIC TRAVELER; HER LATEST ADVENTURE TOOK HER TREKKING IN NEPAL.

TELL US ABOUT TREKKING. WHAT IS THE BEST THING AND THE WORST THING?

My trek in the Everest region of Nepal in 2013 was a bigger adventure than I ever imagined, with one guide book describing it as "seeing Everest the hard way." We climbed two mountain passes more than 17,000 feet each and one at 18,200 feet. The approaches to the pass summits were very steep and the descents daunting. We hiked more than 100 miles and stayed above 15,000 feet for two weeks. There were some good trails, but mostly we scrambled over seemingly endless rocks as well as snow fields and glaciers. It was unseasonably cold, and although we stayed in lodges, no lodge has heat. I slept for nearly two weeks in full long underwear, wool socks, a hat and a down jacket, all inside my sleeping bag.

So the worst thing was simply how physically challenging it was in a myriad of ways, but the best thing was what I got to see. Even at 18,000 feet, the mountains tower above you in stunning beauty as you stand in the vast wilderness. There was a hanging glacier on one massive face whose ice layers glistened in the sunshine like a million diamonds. The behemoth mountains and valleys, along with the gentle people, permeate one's soul. Oh, yes, the other best thing: that I was able to summon some unknown inner resources to actually do this!

WHAT WAS YOUR CHILDHOOD AMBITION?

At one point I dreamed of raising horses, and as I got a bit older, I dreamed of being a fashion designer. (I was an avid seamstress as a teen.)

WHAT IS YOUR PROUDEST ACCOMPLISHMENT?

My four kids. They are each unique adults, but caring, competent people who do excellent work in their very different fields.

WHAT TALENT WOULD YOU MOST LIKE TO HAVE?

Most of my Theta friends can converse easily with anyone. I wish I had that skill!

IF YOU COULD INVITE ANYONE—LIVING OR DEAD—TO DINNER, WHO WOULD THEY BE?

I'll go with deceased family members. In particular, I'd love to sit down to dinner with my paternal great-grandparents who left their native Russia in the 1800s, coming through Ellis Island for a new life in this country. I'd also invite my maternal great-grandparents, particularly my great-grandmother. She and I share the same birthday and apparently very similar tastes. When I married in 1966 I carefully chose my silver flatware, as brides of the day did. Years later I discovered that my great-grandmother chose the very same Gorham pattern nearly 100 years earlier.

LOOKING AT ME, NO ONE WOULD GUESS THAT ...

... I've trekked in Nepal—twice—or that I am a good skier, able to ski the "black" slopes and many "double blacks." (Black diamonds identify more difficult/expert runs.)

WHAT DOES THE PHRASE LEADING WOMEN MEAN TO YOU?

It means always pushing boundaries ... in a good way. Always striving for improvement, always learning, always looking ahead, and bringing others along by the power of one's commitment.

WHAT DO YOU VALUE IN YOUR FRIENDS?

Enjoying a good time together, supporting each other in difficult times, a positive outlook, trustworthiness, loyalty, ability to laugh at things.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE THETA MEMORY?

I have so many great memories, but I will choose Founders Day in 2013, when I celebrated 50 years as a Theta. My daughter, KIM, PHI DEUTERON/STANFORD, celebrated her 25th anniversary the same year. We hadn't realized we would reach these significant milestones together until the prior year, so though she doesn't live in Colorado, she flew to Boulder. I was the chairman of Founders Day, and Kim and I interviewed each other. We got to celebrate together in the Beta Iota chapter house where I lived as a college student. Wonderful! ♦

LOUISE LEV GEIL, BI/COLORADO

"The earthquake in Nepal this spring caused devastating loss of life and property. I can't imagine the pain the entire country is experiencing, and the over-whelming recovery process. My thoughts are with everyone there, especially the wonderful people I got to meet."

KAΘ DAY of SERVICE

October 19

Thetas around the globe are Linked Heart to Heart on the Fraternity's Day of Service each October 19. In honor of Bettie Locke Hamilton's birthday, we strive to impact the lives of others and improve our campuses and communities.

Now in its seventh year, Day of Service links Theta collegians and alumnae heart to heart as they join together to spread the widest influence for good. Thank you to all the Thetas who are planning to make the 2015 Day of Service another success!

Day of Service is about taking time out of our busy lives one day a year to purposefully spread the widest influence for good to Thetas and non-Thetas alike. Really, it's the power of one multiplied by 200,000 – the number of living, initiated members around the world.

October 19

Since its inception, Theta's Day of Service has continued to grow. College and alumnae chapters organize events for their members, but individual Thetas also participate. No act of service is too small! Imagine the impact our Fraternity could have if every Theta gave just a little bit of her time to help those in need.

Some successful projects from past years include:

Supporting a "green" project on your campus or in your community

Educating people on a worthy cause (such as CASA)

Volunteering at a local grade school

Walking dogs at a local animal shelter

Reading to a child

Sorting clothing or donations at a homeless shelter

Not sure how to get started?

The Day of Service page on the Fraternity website has step-by-step instructions, tips, templates, and much more! What will you do this year to spread the widest influence for good?

When you joined Theta, you began a lifelong sisterhood with more than 256,000 strong, intelligent, leading women. You can help support the Theta experience for future generations by paying your annual alumnae dues today.

Here's how you can pay your $30 alumnae dues:

- Log in to kappaalphatheta.org and choose Alumnae Dues from the list of Common Quick Links on the left;
- Call 800-526-1870;
- Join an alumnae chapter.

TO-DO LIST

Connect with Theta After Graduation

☐ 1 Change Your Email Address

Your college email address will expire before long, and you should start thinking about how you want your email address to reflect your personal and professional brand. Create a new permanent personal email address and update it on Theta's website (log in to kappaalphatheta.org and choose Update Your Personal Information in the list of Related Links on the right.) And while you're at it, update your address and city, too.

☐ 2 Stay Connected

Theta doesn't miss a beat when it comes to social media. Make sure to follow along!

FACEBOOK www.facebook.com/KappaAlphaTheta
INSTAGRAM www.instagram.com/Kappa_Alpha_Theta

THETA FOUNDATION OFFICIAL PAGES:

TWITTER www.twitter.com/ThetaFoundation
FACEBOOK www.facebook.com/ThetaFoundation

☐ 3 Make New Friends

Don't wait for them to come to you; log into kappaalphatheta.org and choose Find a College Chapter or Alumnae Group from the list of Common Quick Links on the left. Reach out to the local contacts to learn more about opportunities for networking, philanthropic projects, social events, and community involvement.

☐ 4 Get Involved

In addition to organized alumnae groups, Theta has a multitude of ways to be involved as an alumna. To learn more about opportunities that will fit your schedule and needs, log in to kappaalphatheta.org; under the Alumnae tab, choose Reconnect with Theta and then Volunteer Opportunities. On the same page, you can find an Alumnae Interest Indicator to let Fraternity officers know about your interests.

☐ 5 Blaze Your Own Path

Are there no alumnae groups or college advisory boards in your area? Consider starting your own alumnae circle or alumnae chapter! There are plenty of resources on kappaalphatheta.org, including the Alumnae Group Toolkit. Email aluminfo@kappaalphatheta.org for more information on how to get the ball rolling.

☐ 6 Go Global

Are you living abroad? Visit Facebook and search for Kappa Alpha Theta Global Alumnae to find Thetas in whatever country you're currently calling home!

☐ 7 Start Networking

However you choose to be involved in Theta after graduation, make the most of it! Theta alumnae are a group of seriously talented and accomplished women, so take the time to get to know those in your area. You'll be surprised how eager they are to meet new grads like you!

Congratulations!

You've worked hard and played hard, and it's finally paid off. You've graduated from college and have reached the oh-so-coveted status of "alumna."

This can be a scary transition, but don't fret! The above to-do list is designed to make your transition into alumna-hood that much easier.

Now that you're equipped with your to-do list, it's time to take a deep breath and jump in! Good luck, alumnae!

WE'VE COME A LONG WAY

BY JENNY NICHOLS, Ψ/WISCONSIN, AND MARY LINCOLN CAMPBELL, AX/PURDUE

Celebrating Kappa Alpha Theta; lifetime sisterhood; and decades of imbuing young women with a commitment to social, intellectual, and moral growth, alumnae and collegians from the PSI CHAPTER at WISCONSIN and the ALPHA CHI CHAPTER at PURDUE gathered to mark milestone anniversaries this spring.

Milestone anniversaries both generate excitement and evoke reflection as Thetas honor the generations of women who have built our chapters and Fraternity into what they are today and simultaneously anticipate the growth in spirit and wisdom that will come from today's and succeeding generations of college women.

Ψ

Ψ/WISCONSIN

Nearly 400 members of Psi met in Madison, Wisconsin, to celebrate the 125th anniversary of the chapter's founding. At a meet-and-greet on Friday night, old friends connected after a few or many years. On Saturday, current collegians proudly showcased the beautiful Psi facility for alumnae and their guests. Many archival items and scrapbooks were on display, and alumnae enjoyed seeing their old rooms and finding photographs from their college days. Saturday evening featured a gala at the Masonic Center; Fraternity Vice President ABBEY MANSFIELD RUBY, BETA PI/MICHIGAN STATE, and Theta Foundation President MARY ELLEN KUTSENDA FITZSIMONDS, BETA KAPPA/DRAKE, congratulated attendees on Psi's rich history and lauded the recent achievements of college members. Attendees were recognized for years of membership—from less than one to more than 60—and the weekend concluded with a lovely ritual service.

AX

AX/PURDUE

In West Lafayette, Indiana, Alpha Chi's weekend celebration included class reunions for the 300 attendees, a showcase of books and artwork created by members, guided campus tours that raised money for CASA, a tea and fashion show highlighting couture from the past century, a gala banquet in the Purdue Memorial Union, and a farewell brunch in the chapter facility. The banquet began with a congratulations from Fraternity President LAURA WARE DOERRE, DELTA XI/

NORTH CAROLINA and welcome from Purdue President Mitch Daniels. Special guests at the banquet included CAROLE CONES BRADFIELD, ALPHA/DEPAUW, BETTIE LOCKE HAMILTON'S great-granddaughter, and three descendants of Alpha Chi's founders: NANCY CROCKETT INCE, BETA/INDIANA; SARA ENGLISH CROOK, BETA GAMMA/COLORADO STATE; and REBECCA ENGLISH

D'ALLEINNE, BETA GAMMA/COLORADO STATE.

The highlight of the weekend was the completion of a capital campaign that raised more than $1 million to nearly fulfill the mortgage on the facility as well as fund a much-needed first-floor renovation. Also in honor of the anniversary, four scholarships were awarded to Alpha Chi collegians, recognizing scholarship, leadership, and service. ◇ framing

when looking through the viewfinder, think of it as looking through a picture frame to “frame” the shot.

for people or animals, focus should be targeted on the nearest eye on the subject.

fill light

with flash (not too close) or reflection, fill light brings the subject out of the dark when there is strong background light.

NO FILL LIGHT

WITH FILL LIGHT

AFTER WORKING IN CORPORATE JOBS AND RAISING A FAMILY WHILE ALSO TAKING WHAT SEEMED LIKE A LIFETIME-WORTH OF PICTURES, LISA SMITH, DELTA KAPPA/LSU, IS PURSUING PHOTOGRAPHY AS A CAREER. SHE CAN'T BELIEVE SHE DIDN'T THINK OF THIS EARLIER IN LIFE!

BY LISA GEBKEN THIBAUT, EI/WESTMINSTER

Whether using a smartphone, a point-and-shoot camera, or a DSLR, all photographers face the same challenges. Following good practices will help improve your chances for getting great pictures. Here are some of the best ways to improve your results.

BLUR HAPPENS—A LOT! IT USUALLY RESULTS FROM ONE OF TWO CAUSES.

1 The automatic focus is aimed just beyond your subject. Be sure to focus on the subject's face or the detail that needs to be sharp. In a group shot, this is generally the face closest to the camera.

2 The subject or the camera is moving, or the action is faster than the camera.

- The lower the light, the longer the shutter has to stay open to make an exposure—then you get blur! Increase the light as much as possible to allow faster shutter speed and quick image capture; opt for a brighter location or add light.

- Get closer to your subject. For sports or indoor action, try to leverage a nearby position from which to shoot.

- Steady yourself and the camera as much as possible—lean against a wall or tree or securely prop the camera on a support and carefully press the shutter button.

- Note that automatic camera settings for Sports will allow maximum shutter speed and light sensitivity, but there are still limits. Night settings may result in blur, with slower shutter speeds. Experiment with these settings to find the best results before you are in a one-time-only picture opportunity!

LIGHTEN UP! GET AS MUCH GOOD LIGHT AS YOU CAN.

1 Select a spot with an even, moderate amount of light. A shady spot on a bright day—under an umbrella on the beach, the shaded side of a building, or under a tree—is ideal. Try to get everyone in the same light; if half your subjects are in the sun and half are in the shade, half of them will not look so good!

2 The dark shape of a person standing and looking out toward the sunset on a beach can be pretty cool. But it's not so cool if you didn't mean to create that effect! If the subject of your photograph is dark with a bright light behind her, your camera will adjust for the bright light and leave your subject in the dark. This is a good case for fill light from a flash or reflector.

- To soften light from a flash, hold a piece of tissue paper in front of the flash. This will help avoid harsh, unflattering contrasts. You can also back away further from your subject and zoom in on them to soften the flash. You shouldn't use flash when you're taking a picture of a subject in the distance and there are subjects closer to you. For instance, if you take a picture of a concert stage, the flash will light up the back of the people in front of you! This is not good.

- To bounce light onto the darker side of the subject, use the light from a nearby window or a white piece of paper or fabric.

COMPOSE YOURSELF!

- Frame it. When you look through the viewfinder, imagine that the viewfinder is a frame for the photo. Look to see that the entire space is filled and balanced. You don't want the group to be herded to the side of the picture, or to cut some people out because you weren't looking through the viewfinder and adjusting your aim.

- Change your point of view. As you frame your picture, consider how the view best fits in the frame. For long, vertical subjects, try turning the camera vertically for a “portrait” orientation. Flattering people photos are usually shot from the mid-chest or shoulders up. For shots that are wider than they are high, or a group of people, turn the camera horizontally for a “landscape” orientation. For large groups, the camera will be at a greater distance and more likely include full-body pictures. ◇

BY NORALEEN DUVALL YOUNG, CA, AX/PURDUE

THE ARCHIVE INCREASINGLY RECEIVES GENEALOGICAL REQUESTS FROM MEMBERS AND NON-MEMBERS ALIKE WHO ARE SEEKING INFORMATION ON A GRANDMOTHER, AUNT, OR OTHER THETA RELATIVE.

So how would the Theta archive be able to answer these types of requests? We have several sources, and the first is the Kappa Alpha Theta Magazine. From articles written about notable Thetas to chapter letters, past issues of the magazine contain a wealth of information about members.

Chapter letters—published in each of the quarterly issues from the beginning of the magazine in 1885 until the 1960s—contain information about both new members (sometimes even references to other Theta family members) and initiated members, noting their activities in campus groups and events and honors bestowed upon them. For many years, each chapter letter would conclude with a listing of marriages, engagements, and births, as well as occupational and travel tidbits of its members. If the chapter letter didn't mention individuals, it at least gives a taste of what campus and chapter life was like during the period the family member attended the school.

The second source is the archive catalog (available to members via heritage.kappaalphatheta.org), which may also list objects associated with Thetas, particularly photographs. As the archive catalogs more materials, the database is constantly expanding with new and relevant information.

A final source—outside the Theta archive—is university archives and special collections for specific campuses. Many universities have extensive collections on student life. Some have digitized their yearbooks and student newspapers, as well as other items in their collections that can be accessed via their website. Even if digitized content is not yet available online, it is worth an email or phone call to see what information may be available about a family member.

So if you are interested in your family history or are trying to track down the history of a Theta from the past, do not forget to consider the Fraternity archive as a source. ♦

KΑΘ & CASA

I'M GOING TO TRY

BY ELISE CONNOR ROWAN, Γ/BUTLER

THIS YEAR MARKS THE 25TH ANNIVERSARY BETWEEN KAPPA ALPHA THETA AND COURT APPOINTED SPECIAL ADVOCATES (CASA)! WE CELEBRATE BY SHARING STORIES OF CASA'S WORK, CURRENT AND PAST FOSTER CHILDREN, AND HOW YOU CAN COMMEMORATE THIS MILESTONE.

After beating back my curiosity for a few years, I took the plunge last October to become a Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) volunteer. A number of vexing questions had prohibited me from signing up sooner. Among them: 1) Do I really have time for this? 2) What if I have to move unexpectedly and abandon my case? 3) And maybe most importantly, how can I really help a child in foster care?

For a while, my answers weren't compelling. But over time, something shifted. Perhaps I was caught up in the spirit of CASA and Theta's 25th anniversary. Perhaps I also felt a desire to contribute to my community in a more meaningful way. (The widest influence for good was calling!)

So when those questions came up this past October, I thought: 1) I'm busy, but there's always time for something if you prioritize it; 2) All CASA asks is a year-long commitment to a case, the same amount of time as a standard lease; and 3) I have no idea if I can make a difference in a child's life ... but I'm going to try.

Training began in October. We met every other Saturday for eight weeks. In between, we completed online training modules. I learned about my role as a CASA and about topics that may affect children in foster care, such as poverty, domestic violence, substance abuse, human trafficking and discrimination. We got up to speed on cultural competency; what activities are appropriate to do with youths of varying ages; and what it's like to work with a social worker, attorney, and various actors assigned to the child's case. We role-played and practiced how to introduce ourselves to our newly assigned CASA youth and how to describe our role. We heard success stories about parents reuniting with their children and about real cases where a CASA volunteer made a difference.

I was pleasantly surprised to learn that our curriculum centered on social justice issues about which I care deeply. I expected mountains of paper on complex legal topics; instead, we watched Ted Talks by domestic violence survivors and listened to podcasts about issues that youth encounter in the foster care system.

Many Theta friends are surprised to learn that you don't have to be an attorney to be a CASA. You don't even have to have any experience working with children. You only have to be 21 to go through training, and you have to be tenacious and eager to form a relationship with a child who's been disappointed by adults entrusted with his or her care.

It seems like a tall order. And let's be honest, it is. Just five months into my new role, I still find myself questioning what I have to offer my 14 year-old CASA youth, a girl who, like me, enjoys bowling, buffalo chicken wings and Katy Perry singalongs. But we are forming a connection that could allow me to contribute meaningfully to her life.

I may doubt my ability to make a difference, but in reality, we Leading Women are powerful beyond measure. Exhibit A: On May 5, Thetas everywhere came together to raise more than $28,000 in just 25 hours for CASA. Those funds will support 27 children in foster care by providing training for 27 new advocates.

Just think: What if those 27 CASAs were Thetas? ◇

About the author: Elise Connor Rowan, Gamma/Butler, is communications officer at Nuclear Threat Initiative. She currently volunteers for Theta's service and philanthropy efforts and recently represented the Fraternity at the 2015 National CASA Conference.

STORIES SOUGHT

We need your help to tell the story of Theta and CASA! Theta wants to highlight members and chapters who support, advocate, and volunteer for this great cause. Do you have a successful signature philanthropy event? Do you volunteer at your local CASA's events and programs? Do you plan an educational opportunity for your chapter to learn more about CASA? Do you work for CASA or volunteer as an advocate? If so, we want to know! Send your stories and photos to CASA@kappaalphatheta.org.

LEADING WOMEN

PASes NEEDED

A PERMANENT ALUMNAE SECRETARY (PAS) MAINTAINS RECORDS OF ALL INITIATED MEMBERS OF A GIVEN CHAPTER. IN THIS WAY, THESE OFFICERS OF THE FRATERNITY ENSURE THAT EACH ALUMNA REMAINS IN TOUCH WITH THETA. EACH OF THE FOLLOWING CHAPTERS IS IN NEED OF A PAS.

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE CONTACT

THETA. WE ARE LEADING WOMEN.

UROCHESTER.KAPPAALPHATHETA.ORG

Thetas are making lasting contributions as leaders, financial supporters and passionate ambassadors for CASA.

CASAFORCHILDREN.ORG

My entire career has focused on networking, public speaking, and resolving issues among people. Everything I did at Theta prepared me for that.

TRACEY LONG CARISCH, B/INDIANA (SEE PAGE 19)

"LEADING WOMEN" MEANS PUSHING BOUNDARIES ... IN A GOOD WAY.

LOUISE LEV GEIL, B/COLORADO (SEE PAGE 23)

Theta shaped and changed me and gave me confidence I didn't know I had. Being part of an all-woman's organization strengthened me.

SARAH CRAIG, IT/ALBION (SEE PAGE 34)

That these impressive and dedicated Theta students nominated my teaching means more than the ten Outstanding Faculty Award itself.

RON PITCOCK, ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR, TEXAS CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY (TCU360.COM, APRIL 25, 2015)
